The topics of the conference:

- Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency - The opportunities and perspectives of the South East European Energy Market
- Energy Security and Supply - Energy Security for the Gas and Electricity Market in South East Europe
- Liberalization of the Energy Market: Tomorrow's energy markets in South East Europe - Where are we heading?

Energy efficiency and supply security remain the main challenges in South East Europe

The need to improve resource efficiency is a top priority in South East Europe. In this region, energy efficiency is among the lowest in Europe. In addition, supply of energy can frequently not meet the demand due to outdated conventional power plants and only limited use of the considerable local potential of renewable energies.

This becomes also more relevant since the energy sector of South East Europe is the key to sustained regional growth and increasing prosperity and a door opener for closer integration with the European Union. Therefore, the South East European countries, in cooperation with the European Union have committed themselves to implement EU legislation on energy with regards to a wide field of issues. This poses challenges to all market participants, but also considerable opportunities. An analysis and dialogue on the further development of the energy sector in South East Europe and its necessary institutional, legislative and investment changes is therefore essential.

In order to discuss these challenges and opportunities, evroenergie L.L.C. is organizing the conference Energy Market South East Europe 2015 as an information and communication platform in Prishtina, Republic of Kosovo, on 15 - 16 October 2015. This annual conference brings together high-level managers, politicians, investors and experts from South East Europe and the European Union to debate, discuss and network. It consists of three panel sessions on supply security, renewable energy & energy efficiency and market liberalization, as well as of key note speeches on these and further issues of the energy sector. The conference is accompanied by an exhibition where local companies and investors may share experience and discuss opportunities. Energy Market South East Europe 2015 is thus not only about exchanging information on present challenges – it is also about addressing solutions and uncovering opportunities of tomorrow.
